

The coach station and car park near the town hall, Lymington Road (PR35105)

A pictorial glimpse into Bay's past

A glimpse at tourism in Torbay of yesterday is this week's pictorial treat from Torquay Museum.

VERONIKA VALIGURSKÁ
Torquay Museum

These old images show life around the Bay in bygone times.

The coach and car park in Lymington Road looks very busy as holidaymakers flocked to the town.

The visitors would have enjoyed the Livermead Cliff Hotel, pictured here on a postcard, and visit to Longpark Pottery for a souvenir of their annual trip to the seaside.

The fourth picture shows life going on shortly after a train accident at Livermead in 1962, no doubt involving - but hopefully not injuring - holidaymakers.

Photographs from Torquay Museum's archive can be purchased by quoting their PR number to enquiries@torquaymuseum.org. The museum is a registered charity and the money raised goes to looking after the collections.

A display of products from Longpark Pottery (PR19357)

A railway accident on the bridge at Livermead, Torquay, in August, 1962 (PR7086)

A postcard of the Livermead Cliff Hotel (PR24822.131)